Online Master’s Programs from Washington University School of Law

Top 20 Ranked Law School

About Washington University School of Law

Founded in 1867, Washington University School of Law is the oldest operating law school west of the Mississippi River. As one of the top-20 law schools in the United States¹, the School of Law has been American Bar Association (ABA)-approved since 1923 and has long been led by a team of internationally recognized faculty who are experts in their fields.

Explore Our Program Offerings

Our ABA-acquiesced degree programs can all be completed entirely online, and include a range of electives so you can tailor your education to your career goals:

Master of Legal Studies (MLS):
Designed specifically for non-lawyers and professionals looking to build their knowledge of the U.S. legal system to better perform their law-related tasks at work. Skills are applicable across a variety of industries. Complete in as few as 12 months.

Master of Laws (LL.M.) in U.S. Law:
Designed for international lawyers who would like to improve their understanding of U.S. law in order to practice law in the U.S. or to work at an international law firm. Complete in as few as 12 months.

Dual Master of Laws (LL.M.):
Offers foreign-trained lawyers the chance to earn an LL.M. in U.S. Law from Washington University School of Law and an LL.M. in Transnational Legal Practice from Tecnológico de Monterrey. Graduates will be prepared to practice law on a global landscape. Complete in two to three years.

¹ U.S. News & World Report, 2018
What Can You Do with a Legal Degree?

Master of Legal Studies
Professionals in almost all industries work with legal procedure in some capacity — from risk management to government regulation. With an MLS degree, you will graduate equipped with the foundation in U.S. legal concepts and procedures needed to advance your career. The skills you will gain include:

Building and Negotiating Contracts
Through courses like Contracts and Negotiation, you will learn to understand legal terminology and develop the skills to safeguard yourself and your company. Skills like these are ideal for professionals looking to negotiate client partnerships, build and revise contracts for transactions or start their own businesses.

Advocating for Clients and Patients
Through courses like Trial Advocacy and Health Law, you will gain the legal background to better understand laws and citizen rights so that you can more effectively petition for clients and patients on the job. These are important skills for professionals in health care, social work, nonprofit and advocacy work.

Researching and Consulting
Learning how to adeptly navigate the law, advise clients on legal matters, and use research databases like LexisNexis and Westlaw are skills that are transferrable across a wide variety of industries — including politics, government, business and finance.

LL.M. and Dual LL.M.
Our LL.M. programs will prepare you to practice law on a global scale. You will graduate prepared to advance your career in a variety of ways, including:

Practicing in the U.S.
Upon completion on the LL.M. programs, you will be eligible to take the bar exam in California and Washington state. International attorneys often pursue an LL.M. in U.S. Law as a shorter path to becoming a practicing attorney in the United States than a traditional three-year J.D. program.

Working at International Firms
With a solid understanding of U.S. or international law you will be able to expand your job prospects to international firms and take on clients from around the world.

Practicing at Home With Greater Insight
Understanding the complexities of another country’s legal system and how the law works on a global scale can help you bring new ideas to your practice at home.
“Distance isn’t an obstacle. This program has helped me meet new people around the world and share knowledge.”

— Diana Contreras, Master of Laws (LL.M.)

Explore the Online Learning Experience

Designed to match the rigor, intimacy and collaboration of our on-campus programs, all three of our online master’s degrees are designed and led by the same faculty who teach on campus — allowing you to earn your degree from a top-20 law school without relocating or putting your commitments on hold. Our live, face-to-face video technology fosters an intimacy that encourages close collaboration between you and your peers and faculty, just like in a physical classroom. The learning experience includes:

- Live, online classes: Classes are held on our videoconferencing platform, allowing you to interact directly with your professors, ask questions and collaborate with peers in real-time. Class sizes are kept to a small student-to-faculty ratio.

- Coursework that complements your class sessions: Coursework assigned outside of class is designed to prepare you for your weekly live class sessions, where you are challenged to apply what you’ve learned. Materials are available at any time, from any device.

- Interactive learning: Faculty conducts classes using the Socratic method, a teaching method that helps you reach your own conclusions about the course material through discussion and debate — and truly engage in class.

- LexisNexis and Westlaw access: Throughout the program you are given access to law databases that allow you to supplement your studies with real legal cases and research.

- On-campus learning experience: You can enhance your online learning experience by attending an optional weekend on the Washington University School of Law campus in St. Louis, Missouri. During the weekend, you will complete a 1-credit elective course, tour legal landmarks and network with your classmates and faculty.

As a student in the program, you will receive dedicated support from the School of Law’s Student Support team, who will assist you with the interactive technology, class enrollment and any questions you may have throughout the program. You will also gain access to our Career Services team, who offer a professional development course, one-on-one advising and information sessions to help you move your career forward.